A Tragle Story From Russia.

The Golos of St. Petersburg relates the following tragic incident. A peasant of the viriage of Olshany, province of Kharkoff, of his return from the market, while counting his money, was called out of the room, some bank notes on the table. His little son, four years old, began to play with the pretty pictures, and when the father returned he found only small pieces left. In his rage he At this moment his wife entered the room with her baby in her arms; letting the babe fall, she snatched the boy and fled from the house with him, boy and fled from the house with him. In but found no trace of life in him. In the house despair she returned to the house and beheld a new horror; her babe was a lifeless corpse floating in the tub of water where it had fallen from her arms. Overwhelmed by misery, the father committed suicide by hanging himself.

A Skeleton Found in a Tree

A startling surprise, after the fash-ion of the story of Ginevra, was expe-rienced not long ago by a party of Styrian wood cutters in the forest of Drommling. They began to fell a venerable oak, which they soon discovered to be quite hollow. Being half decayed it soon came to the ground with a crash, disclosing a skelground with a crash, disclosing a skeleton in excellent preservation. Even the boots, which came above the knee, were almost perfect. By its side was a powder horn, a porcelain pipe bowl and a silver watch on which was engraved the name "H. von Krackowitz, 1812." The teeth were perfect. It would seem to be the skeleton of a man between 30 and 40 years of age. It is conjectured that, while engaged in hunting, he climbed the tree for some purpose, and slipped incautiously into the hollow trunk, from which there was no release, and he probably died of starvation.

A Greet Orator but Poor Writer.

As an orator Mr. Gladstone is almost unapproachable. As a writer he would be, save for his name and reputation, unreadable. Some one asked Lord Beaconafield eighteen months ago whether be had read a certain article written by Mr. Gladatona and at ago whether he had read a certain article written by Mr. Gladstone and at the time engaging particular attention. "I looked through it, of course," the Premier said, "but I cannot say I read it. I can listen with gratification to Mr. Gladstone's longest speeches, but I cannot fer the life of me read what he writes." This was a criticism given under circumstances which preclude suspicions of personal or popreclude suspicions of personal or po-litical animus. It was the verdict of a man of letters on the essay of an or-ator, and it would be difficult to question its justice. Mr. Gladstone's literary style is as bad as it can be. His sentences are long, involved, and wiry, and he is as difficult to read as he is agreeable to listen to.

Accidents in the St. Gothard Tunnel.

A Berne journal has watched the number of casualties which happened during the boring of the St. Gothard tunnel. From the beginning of the work up to December the number of workmen killed was 108, and that of the seriously injured about 300. Further, up to the 28th of February last, when the wall between the two tunnels was pierced, the casualties had amounted to 150 killed and 400 disabled. In proportion to the total number of the workmen employed the killed form 1 per cent. and the injured 2½ per cent. A plan is on foot to assist the disabled men and the families of the killed.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A copy of the report of State En-ineer Wm. Ham. Hall to the Legis sture of California, for the year 1880 has come to hand the the time the port was submitted it was briefly viewed in these columns. Mr. Hall was required to state "what legislation, if any, will be effectual in preenting the rise of the beds of the rivers or in diminishing the rate of rise?" To this he replies: "I can only say that legislation which will provide for the construction of works designed to prevent the sands and gravel from coming into the valley streams, and which will provide for the systematic and sustained treatment of the rivers of the valleys to prevent the unneces sary spreading of their waters, will be effectual, and will accomplish the de-The Coroner's jury at the inquest of Charles de Young returned a verdiet charging I. M. Kalloch with murder. Nothing new, of any importance, has me out in relation to the affair. A nan giving the name of Clemetshaw appeared at the inquest and testified that at the time of the shooting he was looking through the window of the Chronicle counting room, and saw Kalloch and de Young facing each other, the latter leaning against the counter. Directly de Young straightened himself, drew a pistol from his evercoat pocket, and fired at Kalloch. The latter then drew and commenced firing, when de Young ran. No on believes this testimony, however.

An act to regulate the hours for closing barber shops, bath houses and hair dressing saloons on Sunday, goes into effect in California on Saturday next, May 1. It provides that it shall not be lawful for any barber shop or hair dressing saloon in any city or town in the State of California to be kept open on Sunday, after 1 o'clock P. M. It furthermore provides that any person who violates the law shall med guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment until such fine is paid at the usual rates of one day for every $2 of said fine.

We hope that this paragraph from the Bodie Standard is all true: "Trout tching is all the rage at Lundy lake, Homer District, the fish being the finest affect and biting ravenously. It is no uncommon thing for a settler to go out and eatch thirty pounds of fine trout before breakfast. There are two species of trout in the lake—the darkspeckled variety, closely allied to the salmon-trout, and the bright, silverkled brook or mountain trout, the latter being the most delicious fish that swims. The largest and most easily caught of the fish weigh about three pounds apiece." Yazawa 13 44 da

The California Republican State Convention met to-day in Sacramento. The Bee says: "It is expected that the choice will be made without adournment, and the only struggle will be over the question as to whether del-egates shall be instructed to vote for Grant or Blaine. That the sentiment of a majority of delegations from various portions of the State is for the latter there is no disputing, but in politics disings are seldem what they seem," and the feeling may be changed before the nominations are made. In most places it is yet too we't yesterday on his ranch, looking for grasshoppers. He found no insects, but a number of the eggs, which yet show no signs of hatching. Last fall the turned out a drope of home on his ranch, and he thinks that they devour-ep most of the eggs. He noticed them eating the locust eggs and thinks it a capital idea to give hogs a run over the ranches in the fall and let them destroy the eggs of the pests. Chat Roberts is about the only raucher at the head of Long valley who has done any sowing this senson. He has already put in a good deal of grain.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

Execution of Charles Wesley Hymer at Winnemucca for the Murder of T. K. West.

The Murderer Turns Away From Eacthly Things and Trusts in God-Raptism Before the Gallows-Hymer's Last Declaration-He Dies in Thirteen Hin-utes, and is Buried in "a Handsome Coffin."

The Silver State of Tuesday contain the following relative to the execution: A great many visitors were admitted to the jail yesterday to see Charles Wesley Hymer, who was sentenced to be hung to-day. His father, who arrived from the northern part of the county, and his sister, who came from Elko yesterday, spent an hour with him in the afternoof, and Rev. W. A. Trousdale and Rev. F. M. Warington, his spiritual advisers, spent much of the day with him. A representative of the Silver State called on Hymer late in the afternoon and found him resigned and cheerful. He said that he had derived much consolation from the kind words and hopeful promises of the reverend gentlemen and felt that there was hope for him beyond the grave. He entertained no enmity or ill-feeling toward any living being, forgave everybody, as he hoped to be forgiven; felt truly penitent for his past misdeeds and hoped for eternal life beyond the dark valley of death. He has turned away from all earthly things, and hoped GOD WOULD BE MERCIFUL TO HIM.

In the evening several ladies and gen tlemen-among them the father and sister of the doomed young mansembled in the sheriff's office, where religious services were held. The prisoner, whose limbs were shackled with heavy irons, was conducted from his cell by the sheriff and took a seat between his father and sister. Mr. Trousdale read a passage of scripture; a hymn was sung by the congregation, and, after a prayer by Mr. Warring-ton, Mr. Trousdale asked young Hy-mer if he renounced the world, repented of his sins and had faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Being answer-ed in the affirmative he administered the rite of baptism, after which young Hymer and a number of others partook of the sacrament of communio memoration of the Last Supper All the communicants cordially shook hands with Hymer, who retired to his cell in a happy frame of mind. The sheriff says he passed a quiet night and seemed to sleep peacefully. Just before he was taken to the scaffold he penned the following dying statement in a clear hand, which betrayed no symptoms of nervousness.

THE DYING STATEMENT.

"Friends: I am now standing on the rerge of eternity. As a dying state ment, permit me to say that though I was never yet made perfectly conto plough. He was turning up the earth scious of the fact that I am guilty of murder, in the strictest sense of the of God and man as to be willing expiate them all by the sacrifice of my life. The more subtle qualities and attributes of justice in its absolute sense are known only to the Supreme mind himself, and therefore in the hand of One stronger than man to love, wiser than man to judge, and mightier than man to save, I com-mend my whole cause, and bidding you, one and all, farewell, and asking your prayers in my behalf for a better future, let my sad fate serve at least as an example for all wayward and non-law-abiding youths. Into thy hands, Oh God, I commend myself and all I am, for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen."

He said: "Good-by, friends; Oh. God," as the trap dropped. He struggled some minutes, each struggle fanter, until life was extinct. He dropped at 2:11 and struggled until 2:24, when the pulse ceased to beat, and Drs. Hanson and Sponagle pronounced him dead. His body was then cut down and placed in a handsome coffin which his father ordered for his remains. Hymer walked to the scaffold with a firm step and spoke in a voice which betrayed no symptoms of fear. He atoned for his crime in the manner prescribed by law, and, as the saying is, "died game." He was born in Sacramento, Cal., September, 7, 1857.
